

ITALIAN-AUSTRIAN WAR SITUATION MAY DEPEND ON SATISFYING RUSSIA

CE NEWSPAPERS COMMENT ON EFFECT OF POSSIBLE
AUSTRO-RUSSIAN PEACE TREATY.

AUSTRIA HARD PRESSED

Dual Monarchy Might Make Territorial Concessions to Italy, It Is Said.—Greek Rules Gives Interview.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Rome, April 8, via Paris April 9.—The questions whether an understanding between Italy and Austria still is possible and whether a separate Austro-Russian peace treaty is possible are discussed from different points of view by the press of the capital. The papers agree that the two questions are closely related, since if Russia, with the permission of her allies, obtained what she desires and comes to terms with Vienna, it is impossible to imagine that Austria would be willing to make territorial concessions to Italy.

Austria's Condition Grave. It is regarded as probable by the newspapers that reports of peace negotiations would be denied in all official quarters until some tangible agreement is reached. The position of Austria, it is contended, is becoming daily more grave because of Russian invasion and threats of Italian intervention.

The Idea Nazionale says Austria has but little chance of regaining what she has lost and the probabilities are she will lose more if she continues to fight, while by making peace with Russia, she will avoid a further military disaster and might prevent a Serbian advance as well as the intervention of Italy and Romania. The papers say Austria may even hope to obtain moral and material assistance by a victorious war against Italy alone.

Position of Greece. King Constantine of Greece is quoted by the Tribune as declaring in an interview his belief that it will be impossible for the allies to force the Dardanelles without a combined attack by land and sea. His majesty is said to have declared that Greece is in the same position as Italy and other nations which have made military preparations, but have not abandoned their neutrality. While their attitude would be guided by the course of events.

King Constantine, according to the Tribune, asserted that Greeks all over the world would refuse to join enthusiastically to fight for the fatherland if necessary, but the government must be prudent and bring about, if possible, a peaceful reconstruction of the country's finances, which suffered seriously as a result of the Balkan war.

Tripartite Rebels Active. An Italian column operating in Tripoli, under command of Colonel Giannazzi for the protection of the harvesting of the barley crop, southeast of Misda, has been attacked by a force of 1,000 rebels, according to advices reaching Rome. The rebels, after a short fight, were beaten off. Their losses were heavy. The Italian column had 118 men killed and wounded. Misda is about 100 miles south of the city of Tripoli.

Prepare to Move Supplies. Geneva, via Paris, April 9.—Railroad stock is being withdrawn by train from the Swiss frontier, it is reported here, for the transportation of troops and military stores in northern Italy, destined for the region bordering on the Austrian Tyrol. Newspapers say that at a mass meeting last night, attended by five liberal deputies from Milan, a resolution was adopted, characterizing as "absolutely necessary" the participation of Italy in the war.

GERMANS ARE PROUD OF THE KAISER FOR DEMOCRATIC ACTIONS

Emperor Eats With Soldiers At Their Ordinary Meals When Inspecting Troops At The Front.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, April 9.—An intimate picture of the Kaiser in the field, the soldier-emperor whose sharing of the life of the common soldier has united the humblest and the highest in Germany in love and affection and veneration, is given in the following dispatch to the New York States Zeitung.

The Kaiser, to whom the "goulash cannons," the great traveling kettles of hot food, owe their existence, is favorably inclined toward this important new contrivance on the field. Many tales are told in evidence of this, of which the following is one:

Drops In For Meal. A country road in France—soldiers arrive, carefully carrying dishes. The dust-covered field gray who are enjoying their repast suddenly become attentive. On the road there appear four riders—officers. One separates from the group and gallops over to the "goulash cannon."

"At your service, captain," "Almost immediately the other three riders gallop up. The Kaiser! In delighted surprise all shout "Hurrah!" and the highest commander thanks them with a smile.

"How does it taste?" he asks. "Do not let me disturb you; I only want a bite to eat, too, I'm hungry." Then he rides over to the "goulash cannon," where the captain has already had a dish filled for him.

He takes it good naturedly and eats in the midst of his soldiers. "Excellent, excellent," he says now and then and asks for a second portion. "I am taking away your share, but I will prove my gratitude."

The soldiers are enthusiastic and proud that the Kaiser took his food like each of them from the same "goulash cannon" and "dined" in their midst. A real soldier Kaiser! A true soldier's companion! A true soldier's friend!

Idemnification for Meal. In the evening several geese and chickens were sent as "idemnification for the noon meal" and were eaten with great joy for supper. This little incident is characteristic of the attitude and life of the Kaiser toward his troops. For this reason no arrangements are ever made for the Kaiser's meals on these trips.

"We will meet a 'goulash cannon,'" he always says when asked as to what he wishes to order for his dinner. This is also a proof of the excellence of the food which the troops receive from the field kitchens, for the Kaiser never announces his arrival before hand. No special preparations are made for him.

"I will eat what my soldiers eat," he has often declared. "Once a field kitchen was empty when he arrived. The soldiers had not left a single bit, since they of course did not want to eat the food which the eminent guest they were to receive."

"There is nothing to be done! We will simply not eat any supper to-night," he declared the monarch good naturedly and could not be prevailed upon to ask them to cook something especially for him.

INTERESTING STORY OF HOW GERMANY IS HANDLING AFFAIRS

John Gollner Writes from Stuttgart—Encloses German Bread Ticket—Tells of Business Conditions.

If all the residents of Germany are as confident of ultimate victory for the forces of the Kaiser as John Gollner, a former Janesville resident, now located in Stuttgart, it must be a joyful country to live in. Gollner writes to George S. Parker, on March 11th a long and interesting letter on conditions behind the firing line.

Part of the letter dealt upon what gentlemen Mr. Parker met when in Stuttgart a year ago, are doing, where they are, and how engaged. All mentioned are in the army, or their sons are, some have lost relatives, others have been wounded themselves, but it shows the intense spirit of loyalty that the German people are exhibiting in the crisis.

The bread tickets are most interesting. They represent actual food and in order to send them Mr. Gollner had to go to work. The ticket itself is so characteristic of Mr. Gollner that it is published in full through the courtesy of Mr. Parker, who has been very kind to give insight into the actual conditions in Germany. It is perhaps a bit more optimistic than the writer would express himself if it were not to be passed by the censor, but still it is an interesting account of how those who stay at home live and handle business.

The letter is as follows: I have written you an eight-page letter on February tenth, many postal since and have received your letter of February 11th. My time is occupied with much business, charity work, lodge work, etc.

February with its 28 days established a new record. It was not necessary to make any traveling expenses. I had much goods to sell and customers were anxious to buy some of the chemicals—for lack of new material—cannot be manufactured any more and are replaced as good as possible by the famous German substitutes. I am now busy and quite successful in inventing substitutes. I am left with one man, the others being in the field. Like all Germans, they must pay my salaries during the war. One gets now such pay since August first. It is paid to their wives if they choose.

Everything all over Germany is fine; in fact wonderful, at the same time very different than it was before the war. The thousands of millions of marks (over $100,000,000,000) paid out by the government remain to at least 90% in Germany. Everything for the army is made at home. Prices of military articles have not gone up very high, but no matter how high, the government pays it in the spot cash. The manufacturers, the farmers, the laborers, everyone carries more money than before. Money is circulated so freely, big amounts, and everything cash down. Everyone has cash because everyone pays cash. The ones who do not pay high wages and salaries, they have less laws in Germany than any one of the U. S. A. states, but the laws are enforced.

Food of all kinds, taken as a whole, is now perhaps on an average 20% higher than before the war. Bread, do you know what that word means? It is the only merchandise which money cannot buy. Coming tonight at 12 o'clock, our bread law goes into force. England thinks the Germans will starve, that is such a thing. They have to economize on grains and eat more sugar, pork, etc. An inventory was taken. It showed that there was enough bread for 70 million people for one year. The fact is that the Germans are not so hungry as they are made out to be. I had such fine bread in peace times. I am enclosing a fac-simile of a citizen's bread and flour card and also a traveler's card. I would like to send you original cards if I have any. I do so for many reasons. 1. Grown-up people and especially children should learn how to expect the daily bread. 2. The Germans should know how to expect the daily bread. 3. The church goes English people should also remember that in God's name they should be good to the poor. 4. Women and children, by cutting off their food supply, I will send you some tickets at least it will cost me the bread of several meals. Keep these tickets, they will be valuable some day. These little tickets are good teachers. Same ration for the millionaire as for the poorest man.

On your Atlantic coast enough wheat is stored to feed the world at the same time you people in America have to pay higher prices than people here for bread. Why? Because America produces wheat and makes such a profit on selling it to foreign countries. Nobody can make undue profit on foodstuffs here. I would like to see the man, be he American, English, German or Jew, who can explain the policy of Wilson and Bryan.

I learn much of the world affairs, read the papers every day, of all the war in central countries. I would never advise that the U. S. A. help the Germans, but it surely should remain neutral—in the fullest and non-sensical meaning of the word. You do not protect China, but the American can protect their own interests in the Pacific against Japan.

You are sold out for many months for war materials. Powder companies are making a million a week through the sale of war materials to warring nations. If George Washington could look out of his grave, he would quickly put back his head. He thought he freed his country forever from England.

The war will be over soon day and the world will then see how much was lied and how much injustice was done to a country, whose only "crime" was that by honoring honestly it was more successful than some others, who were used to let their slaves of all colors work for them.

Even if an unnaturalized one, I am as good an American as the best ones. I see things in their true light, they are not learning toward Germany or England either. Wrote too much already. Am afraid it will be taken out by the gentleman who has to censor my letter. We have more French soldiers here than we ever had in peace times. I am glad we did not get the Russians. Whenever they go by disinfecting machines follow.

I received many letters from people, even in Texas, who read my war letters in American papers. Cannot answer all of them.

MONOPOLY ON TRADE DECLARED BY FRENCH

Debate in French Chamber On Law Prohibiting German Trade, Brings Out Many Claims.

Paris, April 9.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press)—The debate which has begun in the chamber of deputies on the law prohibiting commercial relations of French citizens with Germany and Austria-Hungary have developed some interesting facts regarding the competition French industries have suffered from their own soil from German enterprises.

In chemical products particularly the smaller distinctive French houses are declared to have been systematically undersold by powerful German corporations, one of them with a capital of $60,000,000. These German enterprises, it is stated, not only monopolized the commerce in dyes and other chemical products, but furnished employment to none but workers of their own nationality. As soon as French houses endeavored to compete, they were reduced to the point that it was impossible for them to live.

One speaker declared that not only had they monopolized the trade in these products but through the facilities afforded by the laws governing trademarks they have found ways of utilizing the discoveries of French scientists. Names and details furnished in this debate were so conclusive as to produce a considerable impression upon the chamber. The Minister of Commerce informed the chamber that the technical commission of the Patent office has in preparation a law intended to make such competition impossible in the future.

MRS. HELEN J. WRAY DIES THIS MORNING

Old Resident Succumbs After Long Illness at Her Home on Milwaukee Avenue—Leaves 7 Children.

After a lingering illness, Mrs. Helen J. Wray, widow of the late James G. Wray, of 913 North Milwaukee avenue, expired at nine o'clock this morning at her home.

Born June 24th, 1850, near Edinburgh, Scotland, she came to this country with her parents, who were German, and settled in Janesville a few miles east of the city.

In 1870 a few years after the close of the civil war, the deceased was united in marriage to James G. Wray, who, though only a boy of 16 at the time of his enlistment, had served through the entire struggle between the north and south. Mrs. Wray has lived in this city almost all her life, and was prominent together with her husband in the Rebekah and G. A. R. lodges.

Mrs. Wray had suffered severely from rheumatism for over twelve years and was indirectly the cause of her death. Cheerful, patient and long suffering, she was a true Christian and had been an inspiration to all who knew her.

She is survived by her brother, John S. Edgar, of Rock Falls, Iowa, and seven children: James G. Wray, Jr., Charles and Edward of Chicago; William E. Wray of Campbell, Minnesota; Mrs. A. L. Hayner of Antigo, Wis., and her youngest daughter, Margaret, who has lived at home with her. The funeral announcement will be given later.

Frederick Buehl, aged 17 and a half years, died at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Buehl, about two miles west of Janesville, on the Magnolia road, Thursday morning at 12 o'clock. He had been ill but a week with pneumonia. Besides his parents he leaves his brothers and one sister. They are George, Henry, Charles, Albert, Herman and Hilda. The funeral will be held Saturday afternoon at one o'clock at the home and at two o'clock at St. John's German Lutheran church in this city. Rev. S. W. Fuchs officiating. Interment in Oak Hill cemetery.

FRENCH MAKE SLIGHT GAIN ON GERMANS

GENERAL JOFFRE ADVANCES LINE OF BATTLE BETWEEN THE MEUSE AND MOSELLE.

REPORT HEAVY LOSSES

German Leave 1,000 on Field at One Point of Attack—Report Allied Ships Gain in Dardanelles.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, April 9.—The French movement between the Meuse and the Lorraine frontier is developing a distinct offensive with General Joffre pushing his advance, while the Germans are making fierce counter-attacks.

This is the substance of latest dispatches reaching London from the continent. The French advance is being pressed from three bases in three different directions. According to Paris official reports French forces on a front many miles long have occupied new ground measuring from several hundred yards to two miles deep. That the German resistance to these advances has been stubborn, is strikingly indicated by the French report that the Germans on one point of the attack lost one thousand dead on the field.

From the diplomatic standpoint interest is again centering in Greece, where former premier Venizelos apparently despaired of obtaining the support of King Constantine in his efforts to secure a retraction of the reputation of his policy by the present cabinet has decided to retire from politics and may leave the country.

Dispatches received here by way of Athens set forth that the allied fleet, facing the Dardanelles is not far from Bolair on the Gallipoli peninsula, but this news is without official confirmation. Nothing has come to hand to confirm the rumor circulated yesterday that Germany had declared war upon Holland.

Greek Premier Resolute.

Nevertheless, the correspondent continues, the hope that he may change his mind still is entertained, and the party will campaign for the election as if the retirement of its leader was prohibitional.

GERMANS GET WORST OF AEROPLANE DUEL

French Flyer Brings Down German Machine Within Allied Lines After Thrilling Air Fight.

Furnes, Belgium, via Paris, April 9.—A German aircraft was brought down by Roland P. Garros, a famous French aviator, inside the allied line, was described last night by Major Raoul Fontaine, son of very heavy Belgian minister of war, who witnessed the combat. The German first succeeded in rising above Garros' machine, but the latter by a clever twist escaped, and then flew on top of the German.

"From this moment the German's position became critical," said Major Fontaine, for Garros overtook him rapidly, presented the cracking of a quick fire showed the Frenchman judged himself sufficiently near to take the offensive. Could the German escape? It seemed difficult, for Garros shot forward in great bounds getting nearer and nearer, but the German observer used his carbine freely and it seemed that a bullet might strike the Frenchman.

Suddenly a jet of white smoke gushed from the German machine and then a little flame, which in an instant enveloped the whole aeroplane. Notwithstanding the extreme peril, the pilot took to flight, but his efforts to escape soon were converted into horrifying downward plunge. The aeroplane, a mass of flames, struck the ground a score of yards from me and a column of black smoke mingled with sheets of fire poured from the fallen machine.

I ran to the aeroplane, which had fallen close to a ditch, and I soon put out the fire. The aviator, horribly burned, was dead when I reached them. The gasoline tank contained two bullet holes. The machine was marked with the number 12. Its six cylinder engine was very heavy, and this explains its rapid fall. The fire had spared instruments and military documents in thick leather cases. This interesting booty was taken to general headquarters.

WHITE SOX MANAGER HAS KEEN ABILITY CHOOSING PLAYERS

"Pants" Rowlands Supposed to Have Landed Chicago Job Through His Careful Study of Players.

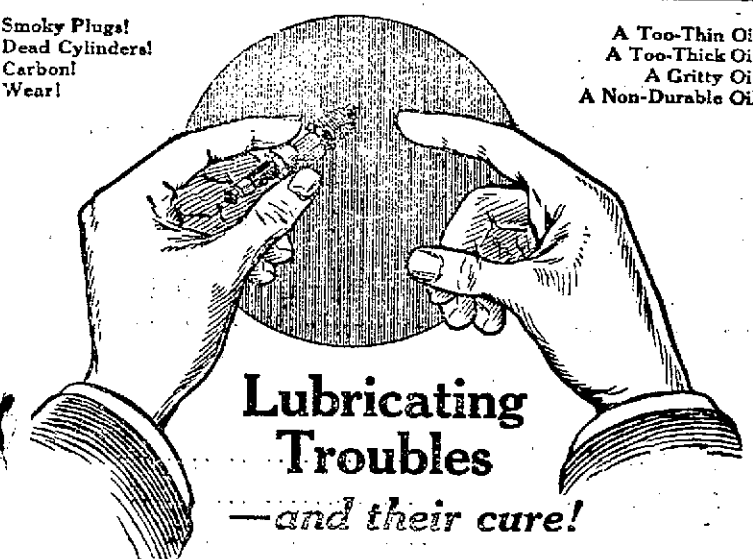

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Chicago, April 9.—One thing above all others may make the Chicago White Sox pennant factors in the American league next season and that is Manager Rowlands' ability to judge the merits and demerits of a baseball player. That too, is the principal reason why Charles A. Comiskey, who has been the former Peoria manager leader of the Sox, shattering all precedents in the major leagues and making the baseball world gasp with astonishment, has recommended Rowlands to take over the Sox.

Rowlands recommended eight big league players to Comiskey and Comiskey picked the Old Roman to sit up and pay attention. Five players recommended by Rowlands, who are with other teams would today be acceptable to Comiskey. They are: Larry Doyle, New York Giants; Bobby Veach, Detroit Americans; Dick Ryan, Brooklyn Nationals; and Lee Magee and Vint Campbell, now playing with Federal league clubs.

CANTILLON'S TEAM STAGES EXHIBITION GAME HERE ON 13TH

Manager of Minneapolis Aggregation Wires Tom Abbott to Make Arrangements for That Date.

Joe Cantillon's Minneapolis baseball team of the American association will stage an exhibition game in this city on next Tuesday afternoon, April 13, at the Park association diamond. Arrangements for the contest will be in charge of Thomas Abbott, who received a telegram from Mr. Cantillon at Hickman, Kentucky, this morning inquiring if it would be possible to secure suitable grounds. Mr. Abbott wired a reply that the fair grounds diamond would be at the disposal of the Minneapolis club.

Cantillon has a squad of twenty men, all of them first class players, who have been rounding into shape for the coming season. Among the members is Eddie Garrity of Beloit, who begins his second season with the Minneapolis aggregation, and Sullivan, a former Edgemoor man, both of them filling backstop positions. Friends of these men who have been following their baseball careers with active interest, will welcome this chance of seeing them in action. Cantillon plans to divide his squad into two teams, and an exciting baseball game is assured. It will serve as a warmer up for the players who will face the Brewers in the opening game of the season on Wednesday in Milwaukee.

VARSITY TEAM WILL HAVE STAR PLAYERS

Lakota Cardinals Not So Sure of Victory After Learning of Wisconsin All-Star Lineup.

It will be a case of one of the best guards in the state against the best forward, when Edler of the Lakota Cardinals basketball five and Chandler of the Wisconsin All-Stars, clash on Saturday afternoon in the second game between the U. W. Reserves and Lakotas at shooting baskets brought defeat by a score of 20 to 28 for the Lakotas. In this game Edler will be shifted to take care of the star, and he is expected to show as good as he did against Fogarty, of the Co. E aggregation. With Chandler, who is a hole team in himself, comes Lange, varsity center; Voss, on the first Badger squad; Meyers, an exceptional dribbler at forward; Davy, Curtin and Skinner, a combination of these men will compose the best basketball team that has played in Janesville, with the exception of the Troy marvels, and they are expected to beat the Janesville team. The Lakotas lineup will be Atwood and Korst or Cornet forwards; Hedberg, center; Edler, Dalton, Falter or Ryan guards. They are in excellent trim and their condition should play a big part in the game. On Friday the sixteenth the second game with Co. E of Fond du Lac will be played, and the Lakotas are banking on trimming the northern champions so hard that there can be no dispute over the state title. The team that will play here, the coming Saturday will be as strong as the varsity five, as several members were sure to win the W's but were disqualified.

CLASSES PREPARING FOR TRACK EVENTS

Coch Curtis Starts Training for Inter-Class Outdoor Meet—To Send Team to Whitewater.

Coch Gay W. Curtis and his track candidates from the four classes in the high school commenced active work this week in preparation for the annual outdoor field and dual meet to be held sometime this month, or early in May.

Fifty candidates for the various events have promised to report for the dashes, hurdles, half-mile and mile runs, and pole vault. The hammer throw and shot-put will be taken up, if the heavy men of the school get out and try for these events. Curtis has accepted the invitation received from the Whitewater Normal school, to participate in the state inter-scholastic meet, there on the afternoon of May 14th. Whitewater is handling the state meet this year as a means of dedicating the new athletic field at the school. The Janesville school will send a strong team of candidates, it is expected.

He has given the use of three acres of land to the Pocantico Hills Athletic club and will aid in building a diamond and grand stand. Manager Kerrigan expects to have a speedy team, and he hopes Mr. Rockefeller will come out and root for it.

BOXING IS BOOSTED GREATLY BY DEFEAT OF NEGRO CHAMPION

Victory of Willard Over Black Will Have Decided Advantage Favoring Game in United States.

(By Strikes.) The biggest stimulus that boxing has received since the advent of legalized boxing through state commissions, is the victory of Willard over Johnson. Since the title shifted to the white race and prejudice of public opinion is once more eliminated against having a fight with an unfavorable reputation, holding a title. The Jeffries-Johnson battle at Reno really was a staggering blow against the boxing game and was a knock out to the game in general. Pacific coast states particularly California, where boxing flourished greatly.

In Illinois it is figured that the commission boxing law, patterned after the one in New York, has a better chance for passing since the Havana battle and the situation is the same in several western states where boxing legislation is pending. It is certain that much of the taint has been removed from boxing and a better feeling will result. Johnson truly has been a cog in the advance of the colored people and a blot on boxing.

At last Freddie Welsh will come down from his no-dentist title pedestal and defend his title in a long decision but, if the present negotiations go through, and there is every reason to believe that the promoters will succeed in getting Welsh to defend his crown for fifteen or twenty thousand dollars. Jim Coffroth, the sunny California promoter is seeking to put Welsh and Ritchie in a forty-five round argument with a twist in Nevada. Denver sportsmen are willing to offer Welsh a twelve thousand guarantee with a liberal per cent on the receipts to meet Charley White while New Haven, Connecticut matchmakers offer the same for the Briton to meet Johnny Dundee—who will be ready for her divorce suit.

Welsh's scale of prices of $25,000 to meet Ritchie are a trifle high but it is certain that some of the promoters will open their banks and give the champion his price. Welsh will pick up a bunch of soft money in two Wisconsin bouts, meeting Red Watson at Hudson, and Ad Wolgast in Milwaukee on the fourth. It is doubtful if the last bout will go through for Wolgast is "done" as a fighter among the leading lights, despite his confidence that his arm will stand up to the test. His showing in his recent Cross bout discards his confidence, for while he had the vigor, his old time punching power and Father Time is champion over champions.

Many Challengers. Since Willard is the idol of the athletic spirit because Johnson whipped himself trying to win the young giant, he will not have a rosy path in defending his title. He wisely has drawn the color line and abased himself in a long bout with the young giant, the French champion, who beat Smith, is also in the running. Willard will not do any boxing immediately for he has an easy fortune awaiting stage work.

Short Bouts Slammed. Jimmy Clabby, who was dethroned from the middleweight ladder, comes forth with a heraldic statement and argument that short bouts should not decide a championship. Jimmy says that any shadow boxer (Mike Gibbons' attention) with a set of parlor tricks can make a showing over a ten round route. Even a physical wreck, as Johnson, can make a wonderful display in that time, for he outpointed Willard until after the 24th round at Havana. Clabby wishes a change against McGoggin and prefers Gibbons for twenty rounds to settle the championship.

Battle scared, aged still with a heart and jaw of iron. Battling Nelson, the greatest lightweight champion, who ever pulled on a glove from a point of gameness, is still wielding the mits and hollering for a championship match. Down in Havana, Bat is making a great hit against the native sluggers for he can mettle out all the punishment they can punch enough to win, when the fellow is tired from landing blows on the American's jaw. Bat will fight as long as he can raise an arm to defend himself and claim he is "just as good as ever." If that was true, Freddie Welsh would not last fifteen rounds with him.

It is a question of federal law, if America will ever get an opportunity of seeing the motion pictures of the Havana battle for there is a federal law that no prize fight pictures can be imported to the United States. The owners of the pictures propose to condense the hottest rounds of the battle from the film, weave a plot around them ostensibly as an ordinary photo drama. Whether they will evade the law by this means is a hard problem. Since the white won, it is an accepted fact that the pictures would be welcome in the states and would not be subject to the rules of those taken at Reno. If a love plot is inserted in the picture, you can expect to see Jess Willard in a romantic scene with a movie queen, and with his six foot six, it would be considerable of a contract. Imagine Willard and Johnson in a courtship over Mary Pickford.

"FEDS" MAKE DEBUT FOR 1915 SCHEDULE

Despite Gloomy Predictions Outlaws Expect to Make Good During the Coming Season.

(By Hal Sheridan.) New York, April 9.—President Gilmore and his Federal League make their 1915 debut tomorrow. Interest of American fandom today was focused upon the new organization, and particularly upon the shifts since the season closed last fall.

Despite gloomy predictions from O. B. Feds magnates today, hustling in preparation for the opening games tomorrow afternoon, are confident of their most successful year. While admitting that few Feds clubs made money last year, the war chest is said to be ample for another year on the baseball battlefield.

Across the Hudson creek today, at Newark, herculean efforts were being made for the inaugural of the Fed brand of big league baseball. The new club, shifted from Indianapolis with many of the 1915 Fed pennant winners enrolled, held morning practice in preparation for the opening game this afternoon. Cy Falkenberg, the pole pitcher was the object of the fans especial interest. Falkenberg is slated to pitch the opener tomorrow.

CONDITION IS SHAKY FOR BI-STATE CLUBS

Rockford Wished To Get Into Three-I League And Bi-State Refuses To Give Up.

The proposed Bi-State league is having a rocky start in the city of Rockford, where President Parsons is attempting to put the new circuit in against the apparent wishes of the baseball public who seek the bigger and better Three-I league for the city. The Springfield franchise has been offered to the Rockford promoters of the diamond but refused to separate any money for the Three-I berth. President Parsons has a good strangle hold on Rockford through the ruling of the National commission that the Forest city was in the Bi-State territory and refuses to give up threatening to obtain a ball park and shove the league down the throats of the Rockford fans against their wish. It would be hard shoving for the gate receipts would mean ruin if the general feeling was not in advantage to the league. Dubuque is also seeking the Three optic franchise and may "beat Rockford to it." There remains no ball parks open for the Bi-State to rent and it is extremely doubtful if they will be able to locate there.

ARREST YOUNG GIRL ON VAGRANT CHARGE

Constable Dulin Captures Tina Rosenbaum After Long Chase on Western Avenue.

Tina Rosenbaum, a girl of about twenty years of age, was arraigned before Judge Maxfield in the municipal court this morning on the charge of vagrancy. She pleaded not guilty to the complaint and her trial was set for Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. Being unable to furnish the one hundred dollar bail set by the court, the girl was committed to the county jail to await her trial tomorrow.

It is said Mrs. Rosenbaum's home is about four miles from Evansville, and since her arrival in Janesville, it is alleged, has been guilty of depraving offenses. Yesterday Constable V. E. Dulin caught sight of the girl on Western avenue and, knowing that she was wanted, gave chase in his horse and buggy. For four blocks it was a merry pace, with the girl sprinting like mad, leaving the galloping horse by half a block. At the arch she tired and was caught. "I'll bet she done the first hundred yards in nine flat," declared Constable Dulin after bringing his captive to the city hall. "Speed, why that girl passed three Fords."

Two Drunks. John Pfeiffer, of Milton Junction, went up to the justice bench and did not get to the bench and disorderly, with a smile and a wink for the court officer. His case was set for April 12th, and his bail set for $150, which he could not furnish, going to jail.

Carl Carlson could not understand, or did not want to, the meaning of guilty or not guilty, and, being a good command of the English language, he listened very attentively, but when it came to the giving of a plea, he came to an ignorance. He was sent to the county jail until Monday, when he will be given a hearing. The police arrested him in a residence where some trouble has been experienced, with intoxicated men.

The ladies of the Congregational church will hold a home baking sale at People's Drug Store, Saturday, April 10th. Sale opens at ten o'clock. Please note change in location.

WOMAN'S PAGE

SIDE TALKS

BY RUTH CAMERON

UNASHAMED

The other evening I went calling and found my hostess in her living room engaged in ironing one of her husband's shirts on an ironing board balanced on two chairs.

It was not a position in which one would choose to be found by an evening caller, especially one as little known as I. Most women would have made themselves and me thoroughly uncomfortable with a flood of excuses and apologies.

Taking the Sting Out of a Trying Situation.

Not so my hostess. She put her iron aside, came forward with a cordial greeting and seated me, before she uttered a word of explanation. Then she simply called her little boy to remove the ironing board and put the chairs in place, saying pleasantly and without a trace of embarrassment, "I've just finished ironing a shirt for my husband. The laundry didn't come for some reason and he discovered to his regret that he had none. This is the only room where I can have a place to attach my electric iron and still have a light."

Then she changed the subject.

She wasn't ashamed. She evidently had no sense of being caught, and by her unembarrassed manner she took the sting of awkwardness out of the situation and left me without any feeling of having come at an inopportune time.

"I Cannot Afford That."

There are few qualities I admire more than this poise, this freedom from narrow embarrassment, this refusal to be ashamed of things that are not really shameful.

It always gives me a thrill of admiration when I hear anyone say in a perfectly unembarrassed way, "I cannot afford that." I consider that with that fine poise, that splendid unembarrassment, they are richer far than if they could afford the thing ten times over.

Of all the stories I have read of Abraham Lincoln I like that one best in which he is described as playing leap frog with his small son when an important minister of state came to call. His wife was much disturbed but Lincoln himself calmly rose from his knees brushed the dust from his trousers, and without effort or visible assumption of dignity but by pure force and worth of character became at once the great President of the United States, ready to handle the destinies of millions.

Poise of manner is a great help when you are not sure of the right convention.

Look As If You Knew and People Will Think You Do.

I have seen people who lack this poise do the right thing with such an air of uncertainty and embarrassment that they appeared ignorant and awkward. And I have seen others do the wrong thing with such poise and serenity that they made it seem right and proper.

Indeed, manners and customs are established by people like this who have the air that makes whatever they do seem right and desirable.

Trust yourself and others will trust you. Respect and believe in yourself and others will respect and believe in you.

when another boy wanted me to go to the theater with him. I phoned the boy and told him just what I wanted to do and asked if I might, but since then, and it has been about four months, he has not come to see me. Did I do terribly wrong in breaking the date? MARIAN.

I do not think so. If the boy had been sensible he would have been glad to have you go somewhere, even with another boy.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: My little girl caught lice at school and I have done everything I know of to get rid of them, but they seem to stick to her hair like glue. If you know of anything that will get rid of them I wish you would tell me.

A WORRIED MOTHER.

Get a stage of larkspur at the drug store and steep it until you have a strong tea. Then wash the little girl's hair in it thoroughly.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Will you please oblige me by printing headquarters of the Red Cross nurse society.

THANK YOU.

AMERICAN SHOE NOW WORN IN ENGLAND

American Women Wear British Style Shoe and English Wear American Fashion in Footwear.

By Margaret Mason.

You've heard each foot of London.

Was a wondrous sight to see.

And that's exactly what each foot.

Of London used to be.

But things have greatly changed my dear.

And now smart women wear shoes almost like Americans.

Some feet you will declare!

London, Mar. 27.—(By Mail to New York).—Now that New York has "stopped" for the forenoon and landed with both feet in the English style shoe, London has flocked about into our shoes and there you are.

Remembering the amazing amount of surface covered by the English woman's foot in her erstwhile long vamp, last British boot you are certainly strained to wonder where its all gone to in the short vamp high heeled foot that is now wearing.

For she has now certainly gone from an extreme to another in outfitting her feet, and no vamp is now quite short enough to suit her whimsy. In fact the real shoe of the moment in London snags the heel of the corset. However, all tourists admit it is a vast improvement and that feminine London by changing its boots has changed every foot of the landscape.

Shoe Shops' hand one sees "American Shoe" advertised with gold letters appropriately a foot high.

Of the characteristically American concepts offered in all seriousness is a grey or tan with side flap of fringed buckskin falling down over the instep in true moccasin style. This, a doubt, would have made a great hit with an original aboriginal belle but would be found dead in America today would be found dead in America today.

The war is on England but everything else seems to be off at night anywhere, even the lights. Such extreme dolefulness even hardened New Yorkers feel, obliged to favor with more than a feeble glance. There seems to be a penchant for a single strand of jet pearls (not even to the alleged bodice of Clingens of jeweled and jetted net still leeked on hang on to the fashionable fair ones and as yet the full skirted models are glimpsed, but rarely when it comes to a matter of economy in bodice material, however, the London belles are afar outstripping us.

Coffrets for evening are elaborate affairs twined with pearls, banded with ribbons or bristling with agrettes. The fish hook curl or bean catcher in front of each eary ear is still worn, good over ere, and the pealed effects now so prevalent in our American modest aren't getting ahead here at all.

English peroxide is twenty volumes where the American brands are only ten. You can readily understand the necessity of double strength as you blonde the predominance of bottle blondes. Those are various and who have looked upon the henna when it is red.

English fad of fastening a rope of pearls or any sort of jeweled necklace high up in the hair in the spot usually sacred to therette and then letting it drop down in front from behind the ears has a modest aren't getting ahead here at all.

Naturally for street costumes the military effects hold first place and especially in millinery are these ideas used in all and every shape and manner.

As if to mock and laugh to scorn the omnipresent soot and grime of London a tiny pure white turban of straw and silk either with or without a trimmed but always spotted in its gleaming snowiness, is on every well dressed head. It is especially attractive when worn in conjunction with white fox fur to which the English woman wisely clings these chill damp days of Spring.

And speaking of London smoke everything and everyday has the habit. Even a Fense might be appressed by the many dainty and ingenious devices for the fair sex whereby their smoking is made luxuriously easy.

Complete little smoking kits fill the spaces in the smart Russian leather range boxes given over at home to the lure of makeup. There are tiny holders for fair fingers in every shape, size and material but one of the newest and handiest has two slender prongs of gold that at one end clasp the cigarette in a vice like and at the other ends in a narrow circle of gold which slips over the finger. Thus equipped the worshipper at the dual shrine of bridge and nicotine will smoke up and play her cards without unnecessary interruption.

Smoke and the world and his wife smoke with you in London, but drink cocktails and you drink alone, if at all for their ain't any such thing as a real American cocktail in the whole of the British Isle—so I've been told.

The Aurora.

The Northern Lights, or Aurora Borealis, are caused by the flow of positive electricity, off from the earth, through the icy mists or clouds that float above the poles, toward the planetary spaces. There is a close causal connection between the aurora and the "sun spots."

There are always bargains in the classified columns.

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

When Dick came home, worn to a frazzle with the hot wind and dust, he found Nell on the bed with a high fever. He realized that she was sick and his heart smote him for his callousness over her condition at that noon. He telephoned for the doctor, then set about helping her to bed.

When the doctor came she was quietly resting. Dick followed him to the door.

"Is it anything serious, doctor?" he asked.

"In the nervous case it may be," the doctor said. "The condition causes the fever. I can't tell how serious it may be, but I'm worried about it."

"You care nothing for the position it places me in," she continued in a high voice. "That girl's wishes are alone considered," and she burst into hysterical sobbing. All the pent-up suffering of weeks was pouring forth now that the gates of self-restraint were down.

Dick soothed and quieted her, and she dropped into a troubled sleep.

"The doctor came early next morning. While he was taking her temperature, Miss Rudolph called at the door and he noticed her quickened pulse.

"Miss Rudolph must not come here to inquire," he told Dick. "She makes her more excitable. It is as I suspected. She is worrying over the gossip and, man, you've got to stop this worry if you want her to get through all right. It's the worst possible thing for her. I'm surprised you know so little of a woman's nervous organism, and in these critical moments she must be protected from worry."

"You care nothing for the position it places me in," she continued in a high voice. "That girl's wishes are alone considered," and she burst into hysterical sobbing. All the pent-up suffering of weeks was pouring forth now that the gates of self-restraint were down.

Household Hints

PREVENT MOTHS.

Place pieces of camphor, cedar-wood, Russia leather, tobacco leaves, whole cloves or anything strongly aromatic in the drawers or boxes where furs and other things to be preserved from moths are kept, and they will never be harmed.

Mice never get into camphor or turpentine where gum camphor is placed.

If moths are discovered in carpets, wash floor with benzine and scatter red pepper on it before putting carpeting down.

Clean carpets when laid, sponge with warm water and ammonia. All crevices, joints and cracks should be brushed with boiling hot alum water exists. Housekeepers should begin at top of her house and clean every thing well, using a good disinfectant, whether or not there are croton bugs in them.

Every precaution should be given to old furniture.

Ammonia is the most powerful and useful agent for cleaning anything. Wash cushions.

Low backs should be carefully washed and packed in boxes or trunks.

THESE DISHES ELIMINATE DEMAND FOR MUCH BREAD.

In the kitchen, with food prices soaring high, it behooves housewives to utilize left-overs in an appetizing way.

Left-over meats take a box of noodles and boil with small onions about fifteen minutes, drain off part of the water, season to taste and add one and one-half or two cups of the cold meat run through a grinder, heat this thoroughly and serve. It makes a good, neat dish and enough for a good supper.

For a cheap and palatable dinner, take one and one-half pounds of boiling beef and cook until nicely done with two onions, then add nearly a box of macaroni and salt accordingly and cook about twenty minutes, which will make a good meat dish at a small cost.

Another good dish is to take about eight medium sized potatoes and three good sized onions and cut into dice. Then take your kettle and when hot put in one large tablespoon of butter and one of lard and two and one-half tablespoons of flour and let brown.

Then add onions and let brown and add about two cups of boiling water. Then add potatoes, chopped and pepper to taste and stir frequently.

Another good dish is to cook one-half box of macaroni in salted water with a couple of onions about twenty minutes.

Have hot at this time one pint of tomatoes, add a lump of butter and a little thickening to tomatoes, and

"The brazen intruder!" thought Nell fiercely. "Must she for ever be thrust down my throat?"

Dick closed the door of the living room and she could hear the low murmur of their voices as she tossed feverishly on her pillow. Finally she heard Miss Rudolph go down the step and the gate clicked behind her. Dick tipped into the room and noticed the slight fever spots in her cheeks and her quickened pulse.

"Miss Rudolph came to see who was sick," he explained, fully aware that she knew who had been there.

"She's kind-hearted and wanted to help," was Dick's tactless answer.

"She had a particle of self-respect she wouldn't come here when she knows how much talk there is about you two."

Dick tried to change the subject, for he saw how excited Nell was setting.

"You care nothing for the position it places me in," she continued in a high voice. "That girl's wishes are alone considered," and she burst into hysterical sobbing. All the pent-up suffering of weeks was pouring forth now that the gates of self-restraint were down.

WHY

Only Absolutely British Bird.

The red grouse is the only bird that is absolutely British. Mr. Richard Kearton claimed in a lecture the other day. It cannot be found in any other part of the world.

Reads the ads every night.

WHEN YOU WASH YOUR HAIR DON'T USE SOAP

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulished coconut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful of all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

FOR LITTLE FOLKS

BY ALICE GREEN GALE

THE ENVOIOUS KITTEN.

A little Kitten sat one day and mewed most mournfully; Said she, "I think a Kitten is a stupid thing to be. 'If I could be a Peacock and strut around,' she cried, 'And spread my tail for folks to see, I would be satisfied. 'Then I would have a lot of friends, I'm very sure of that, And people would admire me,' cried the envious little Cat. Then she sat there in the sun, and some children passed that way, And when the Kitten heard these words she hung her little head. 'Of all the creatures in the world, I love the Kitten best,' Because it's more contented and much sweeter than the rest. And when the Kitten heard these words she hung her little head. Said she, 'I'm glad that little girl did not hear what I said. 'Perhaps it may be just as well to be a kitten small; I guess I'm glad that I am not a Peacock after all. I'm sure that little Cat was wise because it seems to me That if you try you can have friends wherever you may be.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—Oh Bobby! How Could You?

BY F. LEIPZIGER

WOMAN SUFFRAGE

IT'S WAR TIME ASPECT.

London, April 9th: The women of England are doing their duty. They are taking care of the wounded, or they cannot assist in work of that kind they are adding their savings to the good work. They are knitting and sewing for the soldiers at the front. The suffragists have given a little trouble to the government, but it will undoubtedly soften the hearts of those in Parliament since "militants" have turned all their energies to aid the fighting men of England, and so suffrage may soon come after this terrible war is over.

Thousands of women in America have overcome their sufferings, and have been cured of womanly ills by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This medicine, though started nearly a century ago, sells more widely today than any other womanly tonic. It can now be had in tablet form as well as liquid, and every woman who suffers from backache, headache, nervousness, pain at times, should take this "Prescription" of Dr. Pierce.

Many a woman is nervous and irritable, feels dragged down and worn out for no reason that she can think of. In ninety-nine per cent. of these cases it is the womanly organism which requires attention; the weak, dizzy spells and black circles about the eyes, are only symptoms. Go to the source of trouble and correct the irregularities, the drains on the womanly system and the other symptoms disappear.

Doctor Pierce's Pellets are unequalled as a Liver Pill. Smallest, easiest to take. One tiny, sugar-coated Pellet cures Cures Sick Headache, Biliousness, Headache, Dizziness, Constipation, Indigestion, Biliary Attacks, and derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels. 25 cents vial, by druggists.—Advertisement.

All Right in Heaven.

A lady of Somerset, England, bewailed the loss of a somewhat ill-bred but extremely wealthy neighbor, who had been very liberal in his help to her country charities. "Mr. X— is dead," said she. "He was so good, and kind, and helpful to me in all sorts of ways. He was so vulgar, poor, dear fellow, we could not know him in London, but we shall meet him in heaven."

"The little Therese, yes! Now do you begin to see? Now do you begin to realize what I came here to do? Now do you know why I married you? Isn't it clear to you? Well, I have tried to do all these things so that I might break your heart as you broke hers. I came to make you pay!" She was speaking rapidly, excitedly now. Her voice was high-pitched and unnatural. Her eyes seemed to be driving him deeper and deeper into the chair, forcing him down as though with a giant's hand. "The little, timid, heart-broken Therese who would not speak to you, nor kiss you, nor say good-bye to you when you took her darling sister away from the Bristol in the Kartnering more than twenty years ago. Ah, how I loved her—how I loved her! And how I hated you for taking her away from me. Shall I ever forget that wedding night? Shall I ever forget the grief, the loneliness, the hatred that dwelt in my poor little heart that night? Everyone was happy—but the whole world was happy—but was I? I was crushed with grief. You were taking her away across the awful sea—and you were to make her happy, so they said—ah, so said my beloved, joyous sister. You stood before the altar in St. Stephen's with her and promised—promised—promised everything. I heard you. I sat with my mother and turned to ice, but I heard you. All Vienna, all Budapest said that you promised naught but happiness to each other. She was twenty-one. She was lovely—ah, far lovelier than that wretched photograph lying there in front of you. It was made when she was eighteen. She did not write those words on the back of the card. I wrote them—not more than a month ago, before I gave it to Frederic. To this house she came twenty-three years ago. You brought her here, the happiest girl in all the world. How did you send her away? How?"

He stirred in the chair. A spasm of pain crossed his face. "And I was the happiest man in all the world," he said hoarsely. "You are forgetting one thing, Therese." He fell into the way of calling her Therese as if he had known her by no other name. "Your sister was not content to preserve the happiness that—" "Stop!" she commanded. "You are not to speak evil of her now. You will never think evil of her after what I am about to tell you. You will curse yourself. Somehow, I am glad that my plans have gone awry. It gives me the opportunity to see you curse yourself."

"Her sister!" uttered the man unbelievably. "I have married the child Therese. I have held her sister in my arms all these months and never knew. It is a dream. I—"

"Ah, but you have felt even though his fist. His eyes were blazing. 'What manner of woman are you? What were you planning to do to that unhappy boy—her son? Are you a fiend to—'"

"In good time, James, you will know what manner of woman I am," she interrupted quietly. Sinking back in the chair she resumed the broken strain, all the time watching him through half-closed eyes. "She died ten years ago. Her boy was twelve years old. She never saw him after the night you turned her away from this house. On her deathbed, as she was releasing her pure, undefiled soul to God's keeping, she repeated to the priest who went through the unnecessary form of absolving her—she repeated her solemn declaration that she had never wronged you by thought or deed. I had always believed her, the holy priest believed her, God believed her. You would have believed her, too, James Brood. She was a good woman. Do you hear? And you put a curse upon her and drove her out into the night. That was not all. You persecuted her to the end of her unhappy life. You did that to my sister!"

"And yet you married me," he muttered thickly.

"Not because I loved you—oh, no! She loved you to the day of her death, after all the misery and suffering you had heaped upon her. No woman ever endured the anguish that she suffered throughout those hungry years. You kept her child from her. You denied him to her, even though you denied him to yourself. Why did you keep him from her? She was his mother. She had borne him, he was all hers. But not it was your revenge to deprive her of the child she had brought into the world. You worked deliberately in this plan to crush what little there was left in life for her. You kept him with you, though you branded him with a name I cannot utter; you guarded him as if he were your most precious possession and not a curse to your pride; you did this because you knew that you could drive the barb more deeply into her tortured heart. You allowed her to die, after years of pleading, after years of vain endeavor, without even a glimpse of her boy, without ever having heard the word mother on his lips. That is what you did to my sister. For twelve long years you gloated over her misery. Oh, God, man, how I hated you when I married you!" She paused breathless.

"You are creating an excuse for your devilish conduct," he exclaimed harshly. "You are like Matilde, false to the core. You married me for the luxury I could provide, notwithstanding the curse I had put upon your sister. I don't believe a word of what you are saying to—"

"Don't you believe that I am her sister?"

"You—yes, by heaven, I must believe that. Why have I been so blind? You are the little Therese, and you hated me in those other days. I remember well the—"

"A child's despairing hatred because you were taking away the being she loved best of all. Will you believe me when I say that my hatred did not endure for long? When her happy, joyous letters came back to us filled with accounts of your goodness, your devotion, I—I allowed my hatred to die. I forgot that you had robbed me. I came to look upon you as the fairy prince, after all. It was not until she came all the way across the ocean and began to die before our eyes—she was years in dying—it was not until then that I began to hate you with a real, undying hatred."

"And yet you gave yourself to me," he cried. "You put yourself in her place. In heaven's name, what was to be gained by such an act as that?"

"I wanted to take Matilde's boy away from you," she hurried on, and for the first time her eyes began to waver. "The idea suggested itself to me the night I met you at the comtesse's dinner. It was a wonderful, a tremendous thought that entered my brain. At first my real self revolted, but as time went on the idea became an obsession. I married you, James Brood, for the sole purpose of hurting you in the worst possible way; by having Matilde's son strike you where the pain would be the greatest. Ah, you are thinking that I would have permitted myself to have become his mistress, but you are mistaken. I am not that. I would not have damned his soul in that way. I would not have betrayed my sister in that way. Far more subtle was my design. I confess that it was my plan to make him fall in love with me and in the end to run away with him, leaving you to think that the very worst had happened. But it would not have been as you think. He would have been protected, my friend, amply protected. He—"

"But you would have wrecked him—don't you see that you would have wrecked the life you sought to protect? How utterly blind and unfeeling you were. You say that he was my son and Matilde's, honestly born. What was your object, may I inquire, in striking me at such cost to him? You would have made a scoundrel of him for the sake of a personal vengeance. Are you forgetting that he regarded himself as my son?"

"No, I do not forget, James. There was but one way in which I could hope to steal him away from you, and I went about it deliberately, with my eyes open. I came here to induce him to run away with me. I would have taken him back to his mother's home, to her grave, and there I would have told him what you did to her. If after hearing my story he elected to return to the man who had destroyed his mother, I should have stepped aside and offered no protest. But I would have taken him away from you in the manner that would have hurt you the most. My sister was true to you. I would have been just as true, and after you had suffered the torments of hell, it was my plan to reveal everything to you. But you would have had your punishment by that time. When you were at the very end of your strength, when you tremble on the edge of oblivion, then I would have hunted you out and laughed at you and told you the truth. But you would have had years of anguish—years, I say."

"I have already had years of agony, pray do not overlook that fact," said he. "I suffered for twenty years. I was at the edge of oblivion more than once, if it is a pleasure for you to hear me say it, Therese."

"It does not offset the pain that her suffering brought to me. It does not counter-balance the unhappiness you gave to her boy, nor the stigma you put upon him. I am glad that you suffered. It proves to me that you secretly considered yourself to be in the wrong. You doubted yourself. You were never sure, and yet you crushed the life out of her innocent, bleeding heart. You let her die without a word to show that you—"

"I was lost to the world for years," he said. "There were many years when I was not in touch with—"

"But her letters must have reached you. She wrote a thousand of—"

"They never reached me," he said significantly.

"You ordered them destroyed," she cried in sudden comprehension.

"I must decline to answer that question."

CHAPTER XXI.

Revenge Turned Bitter.

She gave him a curious, incredulous smile, and then abruptly returned to her charge. "When my sister came home, degraded, it was nine years of age, but I was not so young that I did not know that a dreadful thing had happened to her. She was blighted beyond all hope of recovery. It was to me—little me—that she told her story over and over again, and it was I to whom she read all of the pitiful letters she wrote to America. My father wanted to come to America to kill you. He did come later on, to plead with you and to kill you if you would not listen to him. But you had gone—to Africa, they said. I could not understand why you would not give to her that little baby boy. He was hers and—"

She stopped short in her recital and covered her eyes with her hands. He waited for her to go on, sitting as rigid as the image that faced him from beyond the table's end. "Afterwards, my father and my uncle made every effort to get the child away from you, but he was hidden—you know how carefully he was hidden so that she might never find him. For ten years she searched for him—and you. For ten years she wrote to you, begging you to let her have him, if only for a little while at a time. She promised to restore him to you, God bless her poor soul! You never replied. You scorned her. We were rich—very rich. But our money was of no help to us in the search for her boy. You had secreted him too well. At last, one day, she told me what it was that you accused her of doing. She told me about Guido Fevrelli, her music-master. I knew him, James. He had known her from childhood. He was one of the finest men I have ever seen."

"He was in love with her," grated Brood.

"Perhaps. Who knows? But if so, he never uttered so much as one word of love to her. He challenged you. Why did you refuse to fight him?"

"Because she begged me not to kill him. Did she tell you that?"

"Yes. But that was not the real reason. It was because you were not sure of your ground."

"I deny that!"

"Never mind. It is enough that poor Fevrelli passed out of her life. She did not see him again until just before she died. He was a noble gentleman. He wrote but one letter to her after that wretched day in this house. I have it here in this packet."

She drew a package of papers from her bosom and laid it upon the table before him. There were a half dozen letters tied together with a piece of white ribbon.

"But one letter from him," she went on. "I have brought it here for you to read. But not now! There are other letters and documents here for you to consider. They are from the grave. Ah, I do not wonder that you shrink and draw back from them. They convict you, James."

"Now I can see why you have taken up this fight against me. You—you know she was innocent," he said in a low, unsteady voice.

"And why I have hated you, al—e? But what you do not understand is how I could have brought myself to the point of loving you."

"Loving me? Good heaven, woman, what do you—"

"Loving you in spite of myself," she cried, beating upon the table with her hands. "I have tried to convince myself that it was not I but the spirit of Matilde that had come to lodge in my treacherous body. I hated you for myself and I loved you for Matilde. She loved you to the end. She never hated you. That was it. The pure, deathless love of Matilde was constantly fighting against the hatred I bore for you. I believe as firmly as I believe that I am alive that she has been near me all the time, battling against my insane desire for vengeance. You have only to recall to yourself the moments when you were so vividly reminded of Matilde Valaska. At those times I am sure that something of Matilde was in me. I was not myself. You have looked into my eyes a thousand times with a question in your own soul. Your soul was striving to reach the soul of Matilde. Ah, all these months I have known that you loved Matilde—not me. You loved the Matilde that was in me. You—"

"I have thought of her—always of her—when you were in my arms."

"I know how well you loved her," she declared slowly. "I know that you went to her tomb long after her death was revealed to you. I know that years ago you made an effort to find Fevrelli. You found his grave, too, and you could not ask him, man to man, if you had wronged her. But in spite of all that you brought up her boy to be sacrificed as—"

"I—I—good God, am I to believe you? If he should be my son!" he cried, starting up, cold with dread.

"He is your son. He could be no other man's son. I have her dying word for it. She declared it in the presence of her God. Wait! Where are you going?"

"I am going down to him!"

SIMPLE WAY TO END DANDRUFF
Stop Falling Hair and Itching Scalp.

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common, liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring, use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve, and entirely destroy, every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

If you value your hair, you should get rid of dandruff at once, for nothing destroys the hair so quickly. It not only starves the hair and makes it fall out, but it makes it stringy, straggly, dull, dry, brittle and lifeless, and everybody notices it.

Dinner Stories

Mrs. Beaton was walking through the park recently when two ragged, dirty little boys, who were playing near by, stopped her and asked the elder of the two, "The kid brudder does fine

"What will he do—caw?" queried Mrs. Beaton.

"Caw," replied the boy, "no cheap imitations like dat, ma'am. He'll eat a worm!"

During the Crimean war a collier walked into a Rhonda shop and asked for a pound of candles.

"Candles are up a penny a pound today, sir," said the grocer.

"Why?" asked the collier of coal.

"Because of the Russian war, sir."

"Then why don't the devils fight in the daylight?" came the final poser.

She was standing on a chair on the pier watching the racing. On a chair behind were two renchmen. The lady turned around and said: "I hope I don't obstruct your view?"

"Mademoiselle," quickly replied one, "I much prefer the obstruction to the view."

A darky running a ferry across the Alabama river was accosted by a poor white stranger who wanted to cross, but hadn't the wherewithal. Pete scratched his woolly poll, perplexed, then queried: "Doan' you got no money at all?"

"No," was the dejected reply.

"But it don't cost yo' but three cents ter cross," insisted Pete.

"I know, but I hain't got three cents."

After a final inward think, Pete remarked: "I done tell yo' what a man what's not got three cents am jes' as well off on dis side ob de river as on de odder!"

Got-His Answer.

He—"Why are you women always going to bargain sales in the hope of getting something for nothing?" She—"For the same reason you men are always going to your poker clubs."

HOW TO HEAL
SKIN-DISEASES

A Baltimore doctor suggests this simple but reliable and inexpensive, home treatment for people suffering with eczema, ringworm, rashes and similar itching, burning skin troubles.

At any reliable drugist's get a jar of resinol ointment and a cake of resinol soap. These will not cost a bit more than seventy-five cents. With the resinol soap and warm water bathe the affected parts thoroughly, until they are free from crusts and the skin is softened. Dry very gently, spread on a thin layer of the resinol ointment, and cover with a light bandage—if necessary to protect the clothing. This should be done twice a day. Usually the distressing itching and burning stop with the first treatment, and the skin soon becomes clear and healthy again.

A HINT FOR SHAVERS

If you want a refreshing shave, with a thick, creamy lather, try a resinol shaving stick. It contains the soothing, healing, resinol medication which makes it especially welcome to men with tender faces.

TAKE THIS GHOST STORY
AND I'M GOING TO READ
IT TONIGHT, BEFORE I GO TO BED.Grippe A Robber Of Strength and Flesh

Run Down, Underweight People
Should Regain Lost Flesh and Strength at This Season.

People who have gone through winter suffering a succession of coughs, colds, grippe, catarrh or other ailments peculiar to cold weather will probably be surprised, if they climb on a weighing scale, to see how much flesh they have lost. Most everyone reaches Spring with weight decreased, vitality lowered, nerves affected and general health and strength impaired.

The best way to regain lost flesh and strength is through the original source of all flesh and strength—food. Food, however, produces flesh and strength only in the proportion in which its nourishing elements are absorbed by the blood. Loss of weight indicates a leakage of the fats, sugars and starches of your food. Instead of going to the blood they are passing through your body as waste. The assimilative functions of your stomach and intestines are out of order and you need something that will get them working right again. Nothing is better for this purpose than a single Sargol tablet eaten at meals for a few weeks. Sargol does not build flesh of itself and taken between meals is of little value for the purpose, but swallowed with your food, it acts upon every mouthful you eat, first separating all the fats, oils, sugars, starches and other materials which make for flesh and strength from the waste matter and then preparing all the fat making, nourishing elements into a form which the blood can readily absorb and distribute throughout the body. The effect is quickly felt. Reported gains in weight of from ten to twenty-five pounds a month are by no means infrequent. Yet its action is perfectly natural and absolutely harmless. Sargol is sold by leading druggists everywhere and every package contains a positive guarantee of weight increase or money back.

Caution:—Sargol is widely used as a general body builder and for many nervous troubles, but when used for such purposes alone and where patient does not desire an increase of weight it should be taken not less than one hour after meals. If taken at meal-times it will almost certainly produce an increase in weight that some may not desire. Advertisement.

Some people have an idea that a paint that's right for indoor work is not as good for outside painting: and vice versa.

It's a mistaken idea; Devco Lead-and-zinc Paint is right for any sort of painting; it covers more surface per gallon and does it better than ordinary paint.

Hand-mixed paint doesn't begin to do the work so well, no matter how good the painter. For all painting use and insist on having Devco Lead-and-zinc Paint.

Judge Lindsey Still Fighting Against All Opposing Forces

Denver, April 9.—Picture a little man about five feet three inches tall and weighing about 110 pounds. In repose he is soft spoken. He is a judge. A few years ago he began to uphold the theory that boys and girls who violated the laws were less than human. He believed that a boy in short trousers, or still in his teens who went astray was not necessarily damned for the rest of his life. Then he put these theories into practice. Things that he said began to carry weight. People listened to him, and this quiet, little judge, whose name was Lindsey, began to talk. It developed that the same tongue which spoke only words of encouragement, advice, and cheer for wayward young folks, had a veritable saw-edge for certain grown-ups.

The little judge wrote a book it was called "The Beast and the Jungle." It exposed one of the worst conditions of political corruption in the country. This corruption was right in the judge's home town—Denver.

A terrible law went up. And for twelve years now Judge Ben B. Lindsey, of the Denver juvenile court, for that is his little judge is—has been fighting.

In twelve years Judge Lindsey has been forced to run for election seven times, and the fights for appointment three times, and has faced the prospect of two recall elections. Neither of these, however, progressed to the point of coming to a vote. But that isn't all. Every legislature since 1905 has brought forth some sort of "anti-Lindsey" bill. This year is no exception.

Each new attack upon Judge Lindsey attracts attention, but they are really only incidents in the general assault which, is Judge Lindsey will tell you, is designed to "wear me out, and impoverish me, physically as well as financially."

The fight against Judge Lindsey has not only been conducted through the legislature, and threatened recall elections, Dr. Bates testifying before it "was sort of a submarine war."

Judge Lindsey will tell you how he has received telephone calls at night, and has been told that young boys or girls have been found in the red light district. This was when Denver had such a district. These calls, the judge learned, were made in hopes of trapping him. Everything had been arranged to "catch" him in a respectable resort through trickery.

Judge Lindsey's hands are tied so far as combating this sort of attack.

Milton News

Milton, April 9.—The barn on the farm occupied by Charles Heritage, a mile north of the village, was destroyed by fire at eleven o'clock a. m. yesterday. The fire department made a quick run but the barn was beyond hope long before their arrival. The house was on fire several times, but the firemen saved it from destruction by their timely arrival. Four horses, several calves, farming tools and hay and grain were burned. Mr. Heritage was not at home when the fire broke out and the hired man was in the field. The loss on barn and contents is estimated at $2,000. The cause of the fire is unknown. Mr. Heritage's household furniture was damaged by removal.

Through the kindness of Miss Hazeltine, director of the library school at Madison, a reading of Louis N. Parkers play, Dierail, will be presented at the college chapel, Monday evening, April 19, at 8 o'clock. The reading, "Dierail," besides being a comedy portrays Dierail, who was prime minister of England during the 70's. The story turns on the purchase of the newly completed Suez Canal. Although Russia has placed very pretty rays in the household of Dierail to learn England's plans and defeat them, Dierail wins the victory and makes Victoria Empress of India. But "Dierail" besides being England's greatest prime minister is a fascinating man of ready wit who finds time to direct a delightful romance of two young people to a happy end. The play is brilliant and full of sparkling repartee.

President Daland has consented to appear as Dierail. The cast will be further strengthened by Professor Stinger, Miss Wiegand, and a number of the college students. Mrs. Koelker of Madison will read the difficult part of Mrs. Travers, the Russian spy. Those who heard the reading last year will again welcome Miss Hazeltine as stage manager. The reading is given under the auspices of the English club of Milton College.

Taking Away the Stones

By REV. HOWARD W. POPE
Superintendent of Mrs. Moody Bible Institute
Chicago

TEXT—Take ye away the stone.—John 8:13.

There are many stones of ignorance, perplexity, and belief which one encounters in Christian work, and it often requires great skill to remove them.

Occasionally we meet a person who claims that there are so many conflicting opinions among Christians that he does not know what to believe. Remind him that the differences of opinion, as a rule, relate to minor matters, such as the mode of baptism or the method of church government, and not to the vital question of salvation.

While they may differ some as to forms of worship and methods of government, it is foolish for one to allow his attention to be diverted to these side issues, and lose sight of the main question. Besides, it is an indication of mental laziness when one is not willing to search the Scriptures and form an opinion of his own. God has given us the Bible which reveals his will, and a mind capable of understanding it (John 20:31). God's will concerning the way of salvation is revealed so clearly that even a child can understand it. What excuse have we then for deferring our duty?

We have no right to hold this matter of repentance in suspense simply because there are some things in the Bible which we do not understand. There always will be things in the Bible which we do not understand, and if we wait until all things are understood by us we shall never be saved. If we will obey that part of God's word we do understand, we will soon get light on some of the obscure things.

I once met a man on the train who claimed to be a skeptic. He said there were so many different religions that he did not know what to believe. "One claims that we ought to worship Buddha and another Confucius. Some say that Mormonism is the true religion, and I suppose you would say that Jesus Christ was the only Saviour. In the midst of all these conflicting opinions, how is one to know what to believe?"

I said to him, "My friend, did you ever embrace any one of those religions?"

"No, sir."

"You remember the fable about the horse which stood between two stacks of hay. He was about to take a bite from one when there came a smell of clover from the other so inviting that he hesitated; then he caught a whiff from the other which led him to turn again, and finally he starved to death between the two stacks, because he could not decide which to eat from."

"Now my friend, are you not making the same mistake which the horse made? Here you stand in the midst of all these religions starving your soul because you do not know which one to choose. Had you not better embrace some one of them, and do it quickly? If you think that Buddhism is the most promising become a Buddhist. If you think Mormonism is from God, become a Mormon. If you find salvation from sin in these religions continue in them, but if not, then accept Christ as your Saviour, and I am sure you will find salvation in him. He is the truth; seek no further. But by all means embrace some religion, and do it quickly for you are starving your soul for the lack of some one to worship and obey."

"I believe there is some truth in what you say," said the man, "but this is my station and I must leave you. I am glad we have had this conversation and I hope we shall meet again."

Apparently the man was convinced of his mistake, and was becoming interested. But he was leaving the car and what could I do? I thought of the little package of leaflets which I usually carry, and selecting a couple I rushed out on the platform and gave them to him. One was the Christian life card, and the other was a leaflet written by Dr. J. W. Chickering of Washington, D. C. Before he died the author had the names of over seven hundred people who had written him or told him personally that they attributed their conversions to this tract.

Daniel Webster states his position very clearly in a letter written to a friend: "I believe that God exists in three persons; this I learn from revelation alone. Nor is it any objection to this belief that I cannot comprehend how one can be three, or three one. I hold it my duty to believe, not what I can comprehend or account for, but what my maker teaches me. I believe religion to be a matter not of demonstration, but of faith. God requires us to give credit to the truths which he reveals, not because we can prove them, but because he reveals them."

DAVID ANNOINTED KING.
(The Story)

That obscure Judean village is in a tumult. The even tenor of its rural life is broken up. An unexpected guest has arrived in the person of a man who outranks the king himself in the popular esteem and confidence. Samuel, the judge, has made a detour from his ordinary circuit, and has come to Bethlehem, least of the cities of Judah. What does his coming portend? The dull town is aroused, while the elders hasten to the gate to forestall, if possible, any impending judgment. A moment later the principal home in the place, that of the prosperous Judean sheik, Jesse, is astir in preparation for a guest who is the most reverend man of the nation. The sacrificial banquet is ready. The goodly savor of the roasted heifer fills the place; the guests are coming; the servants run hither and thither, the stews and roast, host, and symposium is about to take its place.

A shepherd lad, on the rough Judean steppes nearby, tends his father's sheep. He may be the prophet, pass, or noted the tumult in the town, or noted the fidelity of his. Curiosity nor self-interest lure him from his duty. Shepherding sheep has been his uncorrupted preparation for shepherding men. His task is to develop the traits of courage, patience and sympathy. Solitude has been favorable to devotion. As a religious improver, he has often broken the silence under the stars with the strains of his psalmody, accompanying the same with his harp, making yonder cliff come in with the refrain.

It was not bidden even to the head of the feast is called to the head of the table. A servant relieves David in the care of the sheep, and buries, without opportunity to make a toast, into the august presence of the prophet. The candidate to the throne is in the bloom of life. His faithful occupation has given him a check, while auburn locks upon a marble brow and a suggestive of the golden crown he shall soon wear. But these adolescent charms are not to be compared with the graces of the heart.

For which the Lord first moved in quest. David breathed deeply the theocratic spirit, his loved God supremely. His foremost purpose was to his heart and duty to Jehovah, and loving and helpful to his fellows. In this he was a man after God's heart. This constituted his singular adaptation to the theocratic history, a position and a generis in history. As David, the shepherd, the banquet-room Samuel's holy monitor said, "Up! 'Anoint!' In a moment the beaten and fragrant oil of the tabernacle was glittering upon those golden locks. Possibly one of the company save the prophet understood the significance of the anointing. A royal destiny for a shepherd boy who could divide it? So after this episode the test went on, and perhaps the lad, not having been 'sanctified' for the occasion, went back to the sheep. But David knew the meaning of the prophet's enigmatical act. He slowly dawned upon his illuminated consciousness. Preparation for his high calling kept pace with his ever-increasing knowledge of the claims and duties of that calling. There is a progressive occupation and enlightenment of his inner life by the Spirit of the Lord. It matters little whether this divine culture of the young king was mediate or immediate. Samuel may have been his mentor, as he was Saul's. The Bethlehemite lad may have made frequent pilgrimages to Ramoth; or, like him, he may have taken a course in the of the divinity schools. These mediate methods are in no way inimical to the immediate influence of the Spirit of the Lord which came upon David at the time of his anointing, from that day forward. However that may be, when the hour of coronation came, the kingly office was matched by a kingly character. The manifold and imperative exactions of an office which has no exact parallel in history were met by a versatile character, developed and trained to meet those exactions. David could both compose battle-hymns for his army and in person lead to the battle. He could make the law administer it. He could maintain the equilibrium between the recluse and the man of affairs. With a master-brand he changed the whole face of Hebrew history.

Samuel's grief for Saul was evidence of his generous and humane disposition. While he still lived he could not easily treat him as if he were dead. Though he did not visit him, he bitterly lamented his downfall. But there was a boundary beyond which his grief was improper. That limit was the point at which it disqualified him for obedience to God and service to his country. In finding a successor to the fallen monarch, grief is natural. It is even honorable, but there is a ways a point at which a halt must be called to it. That point is where it begins to disqualify one for the service of God. The cure of grief is here indicated. Submission—"I have rejected him." Work—"Fill thine horn and go." Hope—"Blood will tell." The King-elect had an untarnished track in the past. He inherited the princely integrity of Boaz and the devoted fidelity of Ruth. Yet David's ideal of kingship did not show in his physical appearance. Samuel would not have selected him. As Lincoln passed through a throng a spectator said, "He's a common-looking man." The President overheard the remark, turned and said, good-naturedly, "It only shows how well the Lord likes common folks, that he has made so many of us." Moral qualities are more important than physical. Youth is no bar in the Lord's service. David is called, at seventeen, Samuel at twelve. Polydarp Henry at eleven, President Edwards at seven, Robert Hall at twelve, Isaac Watts at nine. Great are the gains to the individual, the church, the world of early piety. The reiterated accusation that the religious character is a spiritless and effeminate type. It shows religion compatible with courage, intrepidity, and clear grit. Yet fervent piety, over-tops David's other traits. The elements of his character are fused with faith and prayer and psalmody. There are no human gauges to measure the inspirational force of life. While it quickens the pulse of youth, it will also prompt an imitation of its noblest traits. It is a voice crying: "Blow the clarion, fill the life."

To all the sensual world proclaim.
One crowded hour of glorious life
Is worth, an age without a name!

GETTING READY FOR THE NEXT LIFE.

It was "Easter Meeting" in Prague. Innumerable booths stood close together on either side of the narrow street. There was buying and selling, merry-making and worshipping, for once in a while there was a shrine at which some one was kneeling. The traveler followed the throng. By and by he happened to glance between the booths and saw a young fellow leaning over a railing. Without knowing it he had moved from the street to the bridge which seemed solid as the earth beneath him. As he walked on he mused: "What a queer life this world of best is only a bridge. Its highest use is to carry us somewhere. Yet men treat it as if it were a continuing city, bowing at its shrines and expecting to make a home. Just then the traveler lifted his eyes. On the height at the end of the bridge stood the palace. Again he mused, 'The best use of the world-bridge is to convey us to our Father's house that's built on high.'"

GUN CLUB ELECTED

THE OLD OFFICERS

Janesville Gun Club Holds Annual Meeting At McNamara Store Last Night.

Old officers, W. E. Lawyer, president; H. W. McNamara, treasurer; and L. N. Nickerson, secretary, were elected at the annual meeting of the Janesville Gun Club held last night at the McNamara store. A committee of H. W. McNamara and Thomas Murphy was appointed to secure new members to the club and attempt to add many names to the organization within the next two months.

It was decided that annual dues of two dollars would be charged to the club on a self-supporting basis. Plans for the registered tournament shoot, which will be held in Janesville on August 15th, were discussed and it was decided to put up fifty dollars in addition to the entry money as prizes, half of which will be in cash and half in trophies. The Janesville club considered the registered shoot, being one of the five cities in the state to obtain such a right. The others are Darlington, Milwaukee, Watertown, La Crosse and Portage.

CHILDREN TO HEAR LECTURE ON SATURDAY

Prof. Gillen, of The U. W., To Speak At Apollo Tomorrow Morning On City Cleanup And Fly Campaigns.

Children of Janesville and adults, for that matter, are urged to attend the lecture, which will be illustrated by motion pictures, to be given by Prof. J. L. Gillen of the State University Saturday morning at ten o'clock at the Apollo theatre. Prof. Gillen will speak on the dangers of the house-fly, and show the children why destructive campaigns should be waged against the dangerous pest. The subject of general city cleaning-up will be taken up and the address will be most timely as the clean-up day in this city is not far away. Members of the Junior Civic League will attend in large numbers and it is anticipated that others will show interest in the lecture.

POLICE HOLD YOUNG MAN FOR THEFT OF SUIT CASE

Earl Hopkins of Evansville, is under the custody of the police department for his alleged connection with the theft of a suit case from the Sheraton hotel last night. It is alleged that Hopkins stole a heavy leather suitcase, and on registering did not have a suitcase, but annexed one during his stay. When the traveling man missed his property the department was notified and Patrolman Smith was detailed to the job. Trace was gained that the suitcase was hidden in the cellar at Chicago & Northwestern station and the police waited for it to come for the property. Their efforts were rewarded and Hopkins was arrested. He was questioned by Chief Champion this afternoon.

COMMUNITY CENTER SECTION ESTABLISHED IN THE TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., April 9.—In connection with the convention of superintendents and principals held at Madison last week, City Superintendent T. J. Jones of West Allis, upon request of a number of school men and women interested in community center development, called a conference to consider organizing a state association of community center workers. At this conference, which was participated in by school administrators from various parts of the state, it was clearly stated that the need is not for an organization or promotion of propaganda but of interchange of professional experiences between men and women of a number of administrative secretaries. City Superintendent Mary T. Bradford of Kenosha, Principal M. T. Buckley of Sauk City, and others addressed the conference on the importance of administrative efficiency. Upon motion of State Superintendent Cary the organization of the State Association of Community Center Workers was effected, Superintendent T. J. Jones being elected president, and Edward W. Wood of the University of Wisconsin Extension community center bureau, secretary. The teachers' association formally endorsed the community center movement at four o'clock last night, but the action was taken in the school-house at the school-house on a party with the work of teaching. The Wisconsin association is among the first in the United States to definitely recognize the community center development as an integral part of the educator's function.

INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL TAKES UP NEW IDEA

INDUCTION OF SEWING AND MILLINERY CLASSES IN WARD SCHOOLS MEET WITH FAVOR.

WISH TO SERVE PUBLIC

Conception is to Do Away With Central Building and at Same Time Serve More Students.

The introduction into Janesville by the industrial school of an idea that will serve many people of the city by doing away largely with the central building of instruction, and organizing new classes in the various public ward schools, has already reached a point of interest. It has shown by the large classes that have been organized. The failure to get more people of the city interested in this work brought about the question of what course could be pursued to secure more students at the least possible expense.

After much planning the new idea of using the public schools was made possible, and this week the work is being carried on with success. At the present time there will be but one millinery and sewing class at each of the following schools: Washington, Adams, Jackson, Garfield, Douglas and Lincoln. In the order in which the schools appear the classes are meeting every afternoon from two o'clock until five. Any woman in the city may enroll in either the sewing or millinery department. Any other information can be had by consulting Principal C. F. Hill.

Women who cannot get to the evening schools are to be benefited by attending the afternoon sessions in their own wards. Three instructors will take care of these classes, two in sewing and one for millinery.

The attendance so far this week has been unusually good, and by another week it is expected that the classes will be filled and overflowing. Owing to the delay in getting the bills distributed and the information spread, few knew nothing of the new courses.

At the Jefferson school Wednesday afternoon, the classes were so large that another instructor had to be secured to take charge of the second class. Ten members will make up each class, and if the enrollment at a school reaches a hundred, enough instructors will be secured to take care of that number. The work does not follow any prescribed course, and a woman having difficulty with a certain piece of dress may bring this work along and get right instructions. A millinery school can be a name applied to the new school idea.

ALLEN B. WEST, Director

(By Allen B. West.)
Question—When should the first spraying of fruit trees be done? What mixture should be used? J. T. D.
Answer—Now, while the trees are dormant is the time to spray for that most troublesome fungus disease, brown rot, which affects apple, cherry and plum trees, being especially harmful to plum trees. The mixture used should be strong Bordeaux or a clear copper sulphate solution made in the proportion of two pounds copper sulphate to fifty gallons water. One gallon will spray an ordinary tree with fine spray. The spraying should be continued through the year, and the land under the trees should be plowed or spaded now if brown rot was prevalent last year.

CASH IN ON THE ODDS AND ENDS

Do you realize that there's more real money "laying around the house" than you'd had any idea of?

Well, there is.

How long is it since you took an "inventory of odds and ends?"

Well, why not?

Why not check up the "old things" down in the basement?

That old rocker and davenport, the pictures you had removed when the guest room was done over, etc., the odd dishes of the old set, the old range, the old stove, the carpet sweeper (you need a new one anyway)—make up a list of all of them—and then put a Classified Ad in the Want Columns of the Gazette and get the money. Why not?

Thousands of people need those very things—glad to buy them and pay for them—and fix them up.

Why not "cash the odds and ends?" This is what Want Ads are really for, if people only knew it, and you might just as well "get what they're worth" as to "throw them out."
Why not!

Want ads cost a cent a word per insertion. If you pay cash with order you save one-fourth.

DAIRY FACTS

LOW TEMPERATURE IS BEST

Churn Should Not Contain More Than Two-Thirds of Its Capacity to Insure Good Butter.

When ready to churn care should be taken not to put too much cream in the churn. The churn should not contain more than two-thirds of its capacity. Much weak and short-bodied butter is caused by overloading the churn and churning at the wrong temperature. Salty, mottled and streaked butter is often due to an uneven temperature of the wash water used during the working process. A good bodied butter is usually inspired by a low temperature, but a high temperature is almost sure to cause a weak bodied product.

Sometimes butter is difficult to "gather," especially when a combined churn is being used. The grain of the butter seems to be worn out by the mass of partly gathered butter pounding and pouring over the inside portions of the churn and by the worker, and when the butter is finally worked it is brittle and weak bodied.

Do not have the temperature of the wash vary very much from that of the butter, but if the butter comes at a high temperature as to make it soft, the wash water must be cold enough to harden the butter, so that it will bear working without overworking or destroying the grain of the butter and giving it a salty appearance.

PAIL AND STOOL COMBINED

Device Recently Invented Acts as Receptacle for Milk and Good Seat for the Milker.

In the dairy where the herd is of any considerable proportions the matter of getting around among the animals at milking time is one of some magnitude and anything of the nature of an innovation, which will facilitate this operation and at the same time make for cleaner milk, will get a welcome. A combined stool for the milker and receptacle for the milk has been recently invented with this object. A can somewhat larger than a bucket is supported on four legs and reinforced for the purpose of supporting the weight which it is called upon to do. The top is covered and the lid acts as a seat for the operator.

Pail and Seat Combined.

Introduced near the top is a funnel arrangement having an outlet spout and an inlet opening. As the milk is drawn from the cow it flows into the can through this funnel extension. This apparatus relieves the dairyman of the necessity of carrying both the stool and milk can, as he must do under ordinary circumstances and at the same time the milk passing so directly from the source of supply to the can, the possibilities of contamination are greatly reduced.

AVERAGE PRODUCT OF A COW

Two Hundred and Forty Pounds of Butterfat Should Be Produced in Year From Animal.

A good dairy animal should produce 240 pounds of butterfat a year. If she produces a milk testing five per cent fat her production of milk must be 3,000 pounds. If the milk is four per cent it is equivalent to 3,000 pounds and if three per cent to 3,000 pounds.

If the cow is dry six weeks out of the year her daily average of butterfat will be about three-fourths of a pound.

If the herd can be made to average this amount daily it is an excellent record to maintain. There are herds that will average more than this, but they are few and far between.

Dairy vs. Poultry.

The cows will return money, or its equivalent, each day in the year, and in a way it will be less worry than to get it from poultry. A cow isn't as easy to stop in her milk flow as a hen is to stop in her egg flow, nor is she as hard to get back to the normal. The money invested is much greater, so this offsets that to some extent.

Worthy of Patience.

It requires lots of patience with some heifers, but if they are promising, they are worth it.

LABOR REPORT MADE BY FRENCH EXPERTS

War Has Put Very Few Wage-Earners Out of Work, Is Claim Made By French Government.

Paris, April 2.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press).—The war has put very few wage earners out of employment in France, says Secretary Joughaux, of the Federation of Labor Syndicates, in the department of the Seine, to The Associated Press.

"Of the six million workmen in France," he added, "it is estimated that between one and a half and two million are in the army. The rest find plenty to do. Building is at a standstill but other industries absorb the help thus made idle. Machinists and metal workers generally in the unoccupied regions are working to the limit. Nearly all the little local machine shops, as well as the large establishments such as motor-car works, and engine building plants are doing something for the army making shells or cartridges or repairing motor-cars and other parts of the equipment."

"For a general revival of commerce, a full revival of industry is necessary," said Joughaux, "and that can come only with the end of hostilities; consequently the shopkeeper suffers far more than the worker."

Monsieur Joughaux, who is one of the conspicuous militants of the revolutionary wing of the Socialist party and in close touch with socialists of all European countries, predicts that the issue of the war will have a greater repercussion upon internationalism than upon nationalism, supposing the allies were victorious. "It is this eventually," he says "that has had a deterring influence upon Italy. The shaking of imperialism, represented by the German allied empires, is necessarily disturbing to crown heads already alarmed by the growth of socialism in their kingdoms. The Czar understood what it would mean and has suddenly become liberal."

"As to France, a militant victory will be worth only its economical triumph; the so-called political reforms have fought for are really economic since the necessary justice to the man whose effort produces the wealth of the nation will prove an economic advantage. We have done with politicians and politics; their elimination from our movement and the war will put an end to an equivocal situation."

"The syndicalists, whose anti-patriotism was feared in case of war, have proven in the trenches what they are worth to the country and their influence will be so much the greater. The struggle between capital and labor will doubtless be resumed after the other great battle has been won, but it will be conducted with less passion than before."

Edgerton News

Edgerton, April 2.—The article on election in yesterday's paper would indicate that the name of D. W. North and Fred Jensen were candidates on the ticket for Justice of the Peace. This was not the case as the only name that appeared on the ballot was that of John DeWe.

Annual report of the Chief of Police to the honorable Mayor and Common Council of the city of Edgerton. Gentlemen: I have the honor of submitting my annual report of the operations of the police department for the year ending March 31, 1915. Attached you will find tabulated statements of all work performed by this department.

I desire to call your attention of your Honorable body to the need of a motorcycle and I petition your honorable body that you authorize the mayor to hire one for the police department at such times as it seems necessary for the best interests of the city.

Respectfully submitted,

BENJAMIN SPRINGER, Chief of Police.

The Freshmen Literary society met in the high school auditorium last evening and rendered the following program. Five minute talks were given by Frederick Ellingson and Chester Peters, they choosing their own topic. The girl members of the society staged a comical play under the leadership of Miss Erma Shoemaker. Following the evening program they elected the following officers: President, James Curran; vice-president, Frederick Ellingson; secretary and treasurer, John Devine; advisor—Miss Erma Shoemaker.

N. B. Carle of Jansville was a business caller in this city yesterday.

The Eighth Grade Girls' club, under the leadership of Miss Stafford, met in her room in the high school last evening. The time was pleasantly spent paying choice selections of the photograph. At the close of the evening refreshments were served.

The report of the election in Wednesday's Edgerton note, libeled D. W. North, who was not a candidate for office. The report said that Mr. North received one vote for justice of the peace. The writer evidently had a grudge against Mr. North.

SNAP SHOTS

Nothing makes a man so quickly forget that he has been jilted as the society of another woman.

Considering the fact that there was no other woman in the case, the married life of Adam and Eve was singularly infelicitous.

In the realm of psychological phenomena there is nothing more amusing than the attempt of a home-sheltered woman to regulate the social diversions of the working girl.

Nearly every evangelist hammers dancing and card playing, which probably accounts for the fact that people have about stopped indulging in those diversions.

JANESVILLE "CUBS"

BEING ORGANIZED

John Dorn Will Manager Team This Summer to Play at Association Park.

Money is being raised from the business men of the city for the support and allowing of a backing fund of a winning baseball nine in Janesville for the summer. John Dorn, member of the Janesville Cubs as a catcher, has secured the lease on the Association Park diamonds at the Fair grounds and will manage the team this year under the present plans. Five hundred dollars is expected to be raised on the subscription list and this should prove adequate to put a nine in the field that is worthy of the city's support.

John Dorn will have the players out on Sunday for the first time this year for an initial practise and the players will be lined-up for the positions to be worked for in making the nine. It is hoped the major part of the team will be composed of local men, thereby creating added interest. The strength will not be sacrificed and the best players that can be obtained with reason will appear under the name of the Janesville Cubs.

The Cubs in their day, played under the management of the late William Hemming and have the record of younger players, made a good record. A good schedule of games is planned to afford Janesville plenty of the national pastime during the summer.

Healthful Drink.

Barley water is a safe and cooling drink and is nutritious as well. Put into a pitcher one large tablespoonful of well-washed pearl barley, pour over it two quarts of boiling water, cover and let stand until cold. Drain off the liquid, add one-half cupful of sugar and a little nutmeg. The juice of a lemon is a pleasant addition.

Mary Pickford in Celebrated Romantic Play, "Mistress Nell."

Mary Pickford, the idol of the screen, will be presented at the Apollo on Monday in the charming romantic drama, "Mistress Nell," by George C. Hazelton, Jr. which has for so many years enthralled audiences throughout the country as a stage success.

"Mistress Nell" is considered the greatest heroine of historic and romantic drama, and as personified by Mary Pickford is a character of delightful femininity combined with the dramatic force inherent in all the work of this gifted star.

The subject is beautifully costumed and the settings faithfully illustrate the imposing environment of the period. In the cast supporting Mary Pickford are Owen Moore, as King Charles II; Arthur Hoops, as the Duke of Buckingham; Ruby Hoffman, as Louise, Duchess of Portsmouth; Amelia Rose, as Orange Nell, and other popular photo-players in the minor roles.
